

Jax McKinney – “User Manual”

My Style:

- I am motivated to develop the skills necessary to provide for my family and I will do what I need to get there.
- If something shows potential in helping me, I will seek it out. Otherwise, it is of no use to me.
- I think about the actions I take and the words I say when I am around others. I want to bring others up around me.

What I Value:

- Loyalty – Trust is the foundation of many great communities.
- Knowledge – What use is anything around us if we do not know how to use it.
- Reason – Thinking a project through will save you a lot of time, money, and heartache.
- Family – One of the greatest reasons to live.

What I don't have patience for:

- Ignorance – It is one thing when it is due to, becomes another when you choose to. Don't choose to be ignorant.
- Slothfulness – Nothing has come from a lack of motivation
- Narcissism – There is no humility in this state, only pride.

How best to communicate with me:

- Be upfront about what you want, don't beat around the bush.
- I take time to make up my mind, let me think about it.
- I appreciate throwing out pros and cons about the ideas presented and discussion, rather than immediate thoughtless decisions.

How to help me:

- Give me all the information I need, otherwise I may spend too much time gathering it.
- Be clear about what your needs are.
- Explain to me when my jokes are enough

What people misunderstand about me:

- I care, even if you think I don't, I do care
- I need to joke about many things, please don't mind
